Nurturing Aspirations...

Supporting Growth...

Studying Abroad is a sign of academic excellence in the field of education. It provides students with front edge competence and combines various areas of interest. Study Abroad Program (SAP) assists the aspirants to internationalize themselves while earning academic credits. SAP allows the students to expand their horizon academically, culturally, and socially.

In this globalized era, Students gain International experience while earning academic credits. International experience is highly sought after by employers across Industries. Indeed 6 out of 10 employers give extra credit for international student experience according to a QS World University rankings report.

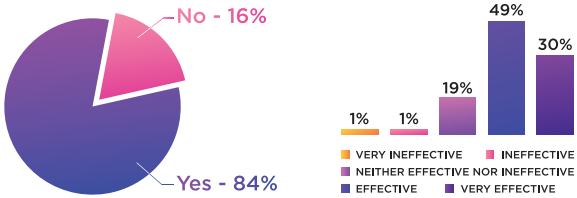

Undergraduate and Postgraduate students should at least do internships abroad which gives them global exposure. They can collaborate with foreign students and faculty for project works to achieve key competences to the jobs in MNC's which undertake works globally as they good exposure.

STUDENT EXPERIENCES

Did studying study abroad help you build job skills?

Most of the other college students are not as lucky as our college. We had an option of going abroad for exploring the advanced construction technology implemented in a foreign country, so I did not want this opportunity to go. Hence I opted for study abroad program.

- Mr. Mohammed Salman, Student, M.Tech.

How effective was study abroad in developing confidence to deal with new skills required for the first job?

I would like to tell my friends that the program which we went was nicely scheduled including learning and other activities. We had a nice experience and country should not be missed.

- Mr. Nitish Halagatti, Student, M.Tech.
